OVERTIME

CSRA Women's golf begins at Pointe South

Cathy McKie begins defense of her CSRA Women's Golf Association 54-hole championship tournament title beginning today.

The tournament starts at Pointe South Golf Club, then moves to Midland Valley on Tuesday and concludes Thursday at North Augusta Country Club.

McKie was known as Cathy Bushee when she won annual tournament by four shots last year.

Among the challengers to McKie will be Jan Smith of Mount Vintage Plantation, Jan Cross of West Lake, Irene DeBarge of Goshen, Sheila Bowers of Woodside and Eydie Jones of Goshen.

This is the season-ending tournament for the association, which has added Mount Vintage to its group since last year's tournament.

■ Jill Tompkins, playing out of West Lake Country Club, shot a 78 at Pointe South Golf Club on Monday to take a one-shot lead in the annual CSRA Women's Golf Association Championship.

In second place was Sheila Bowers of Woodside Plantation with a 79, followed by West Lake's Jan Cross, 81; Goshen's Irene DeBarge, 82; Mount Vintage's Jan Smith, 82; Cedar Creek's Pat Sullivan, 82; Tara's Cathy McKie, 83; Woodside's Dinah Bunn, 83, and Cedar Creek's Dawn Sundvall, 83.

OVERTIME

At 84 were Eydie Jones of Goshen, Midland Valley's Becky Edmonds of Midland Valley, and Woodside's Rita Malloy and Mary Habersham.

McKie is defending champion.

The second round of the 54-hole tournament is scheduled today at Midland Valley Country Club, with the final round set Thursday at North Augusta Country Club.

■ Woodside Plantation's Sheila Bowers moved to the top of the leaderboard Tuesday in the CSRA Women's Golf Association championship. Bowers shot an 81 at Midland Valley Country Club and has a 36-hole score of 160, two strokes better than Jill Tompkins (78-84-162) of West Lake Country Club.

Defending champion Cathy McKie of Tara holds down third place with 83-82-165.

The final round is scheduled Thursday at North Augusta Country Club with tee times beginning at 9 a.m.

McKie victorious in CSRA tourney

By LARRY TAYLOR

NORTH AUGUSTA — Cathy McKie thought she had an advantage entering the final round of the CSRA Women's Golf Association Championship.

As it turned out, she did.

Playing at North Augusta Country Club, where she was once a member, McKie overcame a five-shot deficit and defeated Irene DeBarge on the first playoff hole Thursday to claim the title in the 54-hole event for the second straight year.

"It's harder to defend than it is to win," said McKie, who lives in North Augusta and currently plays out of Tara Golf Club in McCormick. "I used to be a member here, so I thought I had an advantage. But I was still nervous. Anytime you defend, it's harder."

McKie shot an 86 to finish at 251, DeBarge, who lives in Augusta and plays out of Goshen Plantation Country Club, began the day eight shots back, but shot an 83 to get into the playoff.

Second-round leader Sheila Bowers, who lives in Aiken and plays out of Woodside Plantation, tied for second, a shot back at 252, with Jill Tompkins, who lives in Augusta and plays out of West Lake Country Club.

A relative newcomer to the area, Bowers was able to overcome a lack of course knowledge in the first two rounds at Pointe South Golf Club in Hephzibah, Ga., and Midland Valley Country Club. But it finally caught up with her on Thursday.

"It did indeed," said Bowers, who had never played the North Augusta course before and shot a 92.

Cathy McKie blasts out of the trap on No. 16 during the final round of the CSRA Women's Golf Association Championship. McKie won the event in a playoff with Irene DeBarge

"It was not a good day at all, but I still had fun. I have absolutely no regrets and look forward to

Despite knowing the course well from her days as a member, McKie struggled on the front nine before rallying on the back nine.

"I had a very bad front nine. I was very nervous," said the 45-year-old McKie. "I made the turn and decided 'what the heck, just hit the ball.' I birdied No. 10 and things went very well after that."

McKie entered No. 18 a shot down, but parred the hole while DeBarge suffered a bogey, forcing a playoff on No. 1.

"I didn't realize I had a tying putt. I had almost given up really," said McKie. "When I got to the scoreboard I had no idea. I knew I had beaten Jill and I knew I had beaten Sheila, but I thought Irene was winning. I totally didn't realize the putt on 18 was to tie and go to a playoff."

In the playoff, McKie had a 5 on the par-4 hole, while DeBarge, who was in trouble off the tee, had an 8.

The two scores included a one-shot penalty after both players failed to putt out after DeBarge conceded the hole as if it were match play.

"I didn't know that," McKie said. "I should have known, but you always feel like you're in match play any time you go out in a playoff."

Just getting into the playoff was a triumph for DeBarge, who has been battling cancer for the last year and began chemotherapy treatments last September.

"I was just thankful to be in the playoff," said the 67-year-old DeBarge, who won this event in 1986. "I played well, but I missed some putts. But so did everybody else."

Although she wanted to win, McKie admitted afterwards that she was pulling for DeBarge.

"On No. 1, I told her I hope you do (win)," said McKie. "I'm glad I won it, but I wish she could have because of the trials and tribulations she's been through this year with cancer."

After reflecting on her victory for a moment, McKie started thinking about next year.

"I feel like everything has come together. I felt much better this year," said McKie.

"I don't know which courses we're gonna play next year, but I hope I can three-peat."

North Augustan repeats as champion

The final round of CSRA Women's Golf Association 54-hole Championship was a long and emotional one Thursday at North Augusta Country Club for playing partners Cathy McKie and Irene DeBarge.

McKie, the 45-year-old defending champion who lives in North Augusta and plays out of Savannah Lakes Village in McCormick, S.C., won the season-concluding tournament with a double bogey on the first hole of sudden death.

She beat the 67-year-old DeBarge, a sentimental favorite from Augusta who is undergoing her second battery of chemotherapy treatments in the past year.

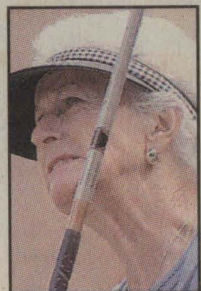

Though the playoff only went one hole, McKie didn't win the tournament officially for another 20 minutes. After McKie missed a par putt on the playoff hole and had a short bogey putt to go, DeBarge, who was putting for an eight, conceded the putt and McKie picked up her ball. At this point, they headed for lunch and the awards ceremony in the dining room.

There was a slight holdup before they could eat. The winner in a sudden death playoff has to finish out the hole, which McKie did not do. After consulting the USGA Rules of Golf, North Augusta pro David Usry told the players they would be penalized a stroke and would have to return to the green, replace their balls and finish out the hole. Both made their putts to make it official.

DeBarge, who plays out of Goshen Plantation Golf Club and won this tournament in 1986, had the low round of the day Thursday, a 10-over-par 83. McKie shot 86 to tie

Golf: Players in field root for DeBarge

DeBarge at 251 for the three-course event.

McKie shot 83 at Pointe South in the first round and had a second-round 82 at Midland Valley. DeBarge shot 82-86 in the first two rounds.

Going into the final round, McKie trailed leader Sheila Bowers of Aiken by five shots; DeBarge was eight back. Bowers, playing in her first 54-hole championship, closed with an 92 to tie for third place, one shot out of the playoff, along with Jill Thompkins of Augusta.

McKie, along with the most of the golfers, were rooting for DeBarge to win her second 54-hole championship.

"I told her on the first hole of the playoff, 'I hope you do it,'" McKie said. "I'm glad I won it, but I wish she would have because of all the trials and tribulations she's been through because of the cancer. I was surprised she played in the tournament. She had a chemotherapy treatment last week. We're all proud of her."

DeBarge had her first chemotherapy treatments last September. The cancer was in remission starting in February, then came back in May, when she started chemotherapy treatments again. She might have surgery for a second time next week, DeBarge said.

"See why I'm thankful to be here?" DeBarge said. "I'm happy to be kicking."

DeBarge would have won the tournament outright with a par on the final hole of regulation, but she three-putted for bogey. McKie, meanwhile, missed the green in regulation, then chipped to within 5 feet and made her par putt.

"I didn't think I had a chance," McKie said. "When we got to the scoreboard, I started adding up the cards, Irene and I were both at 251. I thought Irene was winning totally. I was thankful to be in a playoff."

McKie won the title last year when she was known as Cathy Bushee. She remarried in January and has devoted less time to golf, mainly because of the time she spends with her husband, who plays for a senior softball team out of Atlanta.

"Anytime you win something, you're thinking, 'hopefully, this isn't a fluke' and maybe I can do it again," McKie said. "I think it's harder the second time to win it. I was glad I wasn't leading after two rounds and defending."

Playoff decides winner of CSRA Women's Golf crown

Cathy McKie thought she had an advantage entering the final round of the CSRA Women's Golf Association Championship last week.

As it turned out, she did.

Playing at North Augusta Country Club, where she was once a member, McKie overcame a five-shot deficit and defeated Irene DeBarge on the first playoff hole to claim the title in the 54-hole event for the second straight year.

McKie shot an 86 to finish at 251, DeBarge, who lives in Augusta and plays out of Goshen Plantation Country Club, began the day eight shots back, but shot an 83 to get into the playoff.

McKie entered No. 18 a shot down, but parred the hole while DeBarge suffered a bogey, forcing a playoff on No. 1.

In the playoff, McKie had a 5 on the par-4 hole, while DeBarge, who was in trouble off the tee, had an 8. The two scores included a one-shot penalty after both players failed to putt out after DeBarge conceded the hole as if it were match play.

Just getting into the playoff was a triumph for DeBarge, who has been battling cancer for the last year and began chemotherapy treatments last September. The 67-year-old won this event in 1986.

Although she wanted to win, McKie admitted afterwards that she was pulling for DeBarge.

"On No. 1, I told her I hope you do (win)," said McKie. "I'm glad I won it, but I wish she could have because of the trials and tribulations she's been through this year with cancer."

After reflecting on her victory for a moment, McKie started thinking about next year. "I feel like everything has come together. I felt much better this year," said McKie. "I don't know which courses we're gonna play next year, but I hope I can three-peat."
